Curriculum Link: Business, Administration and Finance.

Summary of Main Benefits:

- Look at current developments affecting the financial services sector
- Better understand the financial issues facing small businesses and new enterprises
- Explore the support available from Pfeg (Personal Finance Education Group) for schools and colleges

Description:

Baker Tilly provided information on the history and background to the organisation and the products and services they offer. They updated teachers on the staffing structure, career paths and their links with local schools.

The local Chamber of Commerce (Business Focus) gave a presentation on some of the issues facing Bromley's small business and how they support new enterprises.

The 10 Teachers were then involved in an inter-active session led by PfEg on the resources and support they can offer schools to help support delivery of financial capability.

Outcomes:

The teachers' feedback indicated that the original objectives had been fully met and they were particularly keen to follow up the offer of support from PfEg.

Baker Tilly were pleased to have the opportunity to be able to promote their products and services but above all, to support the local community.

All areas will have accountants. Why not investigate whether your own business accountants could help? Investigate PfEG resources if you are talking to Business and Finance teachers or tutors.
